Preface

All content found within this guide applies for things created as of time this is published (v2.3.0 – Pikachu). As later content is released, it will not be restricted to the guidelines labeled in this document. An extension is planned to release as more content is added.

3-Essence Powerups

The Thunder essence, and all essences going forward, are released with at minimum 4 powerups, as all essences will be able to combine with the 4 primary elements (Fire, Water, Wind, Ground). In a similar pattern to historic releases, these patterns will also be invertible, that is, 2 of one essence and 1 of the other, regardless of which.

The main gimmick behind Thunder is creating a circuit between you and another individual. For the first time in Kami North's Blackjack History, there are multi-type powerups that have multiple targets that aren't everyone. This creates an exciting new dynamic where you can help yourself and target an opponent simultaneously, or help you and a friend both win.

4-Essence Powerups

As of time of writing, there are currently 4 4-Essence powerups. These have a very straightforward and simple recipe: Combine 2 Thunder with 2 of any of the 4 primary elements. Two of these will have unsurprising results, but the other two will feature interesting playstyles. I'm excited to see how you'll be able to put them into effect. Wendy's 4-for-4 is back, baby B)

5-Essence Powerups

As of time of writing, there are currently 2 5-Essence powerups relating to Thunder. Both of these powerups follow a key pattern, 2-2-1. Each of these include 2 Thunder and AT LEAST 1 Fire. The last element needed is either Wind or Ice.

Beyond this, there are 4 other 5-essence powerups. As you know, adding an additional specific essence to certain 3-essence powerups will create boosted versions of them. This pattern continues, and you can continue to bolster its power furthermore by adding more of the same essence to it. Happy crafting!
