Preface

All content found within this guide applies for things created as of time this is published (v1.2.7). As later content is released, it will not be restricted to the guidelines labeled in this document. An extension is planned to release as more content is added.

General Info

The Soul essence is a very strong one; it has the capability of effecting every player on the table simultaneously. The 3-essence recipes have all been discovered and published already, so writing about them here is redundant.

5-Essence Powerups

The five-essence Soul powerups are fairly reasonable and logical. This section will cover the four that have been published in the Soul-Essence update. All soul powerups that are beyond three-essences follow a key rule: They all require THREE Soul essences. Anything they create are very powerful, so they are also quite expensive. This makes Soul one of your higher demand essences should you find yourself able to trade for them.

On top of the three Soul essences required, a nice additional detail is that the remaining two essences are different from each other, and may include Thunder and/or Wind.

6-Essence Powerups

All six-essence Soul powerups are crucially bound to a key rule: the 321 Rule. The 321 rule states that recipes are composed of three Soul essences, two of another, and one of a Final type. As a thank you for your patience in the book publishings, I will also give another friendly hint: If Thunder and Wind were your best friends for five-essence powerups, then Fire and Ice are your new best friends for six-essence powerups.

The Final Powerup

I lied to you in the last section, that all six-essence powerups follow the 321 rule. This Final powerup is as of time of writing, by far the strongest powerup in the game. I've considered making it 7 essences, but the balance I've decided to do, is rather than giving you hints at its recipe, I will instead tell you about its function. The only hint I can and will offer is that it does not follow the rules mentioned prior.

Good luck, pioneer.

A hand-drawn illustration of a card and two chips. The card is divided into two sections: the left section is red and the right section is blue. To the right of the card is a large, handwritten number "2". To the right of the "2" is a star symbol. Below the star and "2" are two chips. The first chip is green and the second chip is orange. The chips are drawn with a slight curve, giving them a 3D appearance.
